

Playing Battleships on Phones

Playing the Game

Using the radio or telephone system, see if you can play a game of battleships. First of all find someone to play with. You do not need to know their name, it could only be their made up name. Record this on the lines at the bottom.

To play, you need to place 10 crosses on the top grid. Once completed you need to say so, and then start the game. You do this by saying :

My rocket fires at A5.

When the opposite person says where their rocket fires to, you need to say whether it is a hit or miss.

You then need to listen until someone else places their letter in the grid. Make sure it is the right person, the one you are playing with, not someone else.

Your made up name : _____

Your opponent's name : _____

(The phone will work by either picking them up, or by dialling the numbers according to who you wish to phone. Your number is on your phone.)
